FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL. Gold 113 1-4-Stock Mar-ket Dull. City Bank Averages-Shipments of Specie. WALL STREET, SATURDAY, May 4-6 P. M. The market for flour and wheat remains inactive

at unchanged prices. How long it will continue in that dormant state is a problem not easily solved. We have conflicting reports from the West in regard to the stock of wheat on hand. Those in the sterest of lower prices inform us that the farmers to the wheat-growing sections of Illinois, Missouri, Wisconsin and Iown are all rich; that they hold large quantities of grain; and that by the 15th of May the stock of winter wheat in the lake ports will be largely increased. On the other hand, we are told by what are termed the bulls on 'Change that those same farmers have sold out closer this year than ever before, and that there is not enough wheat in the country to bread it until harvest time. Probably both stories are exaggerations, and a point between the two will be the the most safe ace to land our convictions.

GOLD-HIGHEST, 11314; LOWEST, 113. The gold market was quiet to-day and the de-mand limited. At twelve o'clock business was clesed in the Exchange in consequence of the announcement of the death of Coleman T. Robinson. MONEY MARKET.

The money market inclined to ease to-day, and berrewers found no difficulty in procuring all the funds they desired at six and seven per cent. There to talk about another lock-up, but the prevailing epinion is that that operation cannot be made to work successfully under the existing state of the narket. When the Western grain shippers come down with their short sights and imperative de-mands a little game of that kind might be played, but at present it would be folly to attempt it. THE SHARE MARKET.

The general market for stocks to-day was dull and weak; Pacific Mall, however, held the lead, and the principal business was done in that stock, Western Union and Columbus, Cincinnati and Indiana Central. A sale of Pacific Mail was made at 75, seller 60 days, and another at 74%, seller 30. The principal transactions were made, however, between 75 and 77; New York Central and Hudson River souched 99, but most of the sales were at 981/2 a 93%; Western Union Telegraph fluctuated between 76% and 77%; Columbus, Cincinnati and Indiana Central closed firm at 38%, which was a ½ better than the opening; Union Pacific was easy at 40%; In Northwestern a very good business was done at 7914 a 7914: Quicksilver Mining was dull at 42%. REAL ESTATE MATTERS.

The market for the past week, though developing no new features, gives the assurance that it has assumed a natural tone, and although a number of desirable pieces of property were bought in, yet the sales were numerous and satisfactory. There is considerable activity in Boulevard property; and as the work progresses in beautifying this portion of the city, which at no distant future will become the favorite site for aristocratic mansions, large estates are being brought to market-For instance, on Tuesday, Messrs. A. J. Bleecker, Son & Co. will sell in one parcel of eighty city lots an estate on the Hudson River, between 135th and 137th streets, which is valued at nearly half a million. The site presents a perfect panorama, and for magnificence of prospect, the view extending twenty-five miles up the river, this portion of New York city is unsurpassed. The Grand Boulevard, with its long vistas of shade trees, will far surpass the Champs Elysées of Paris, the Unter der Lin-with its long vistas of shade trees, will far surpass the Champs Elysées of Paris, the Unter der Linden of Berlin, or Hyde Park Lane in London; and, as the island of Manhattan is narrow in this locality, building, if it goes on at the rate it has done for the past five years—that is, 2,000 houses per annum—a continuous line of brick and mortar will soon stretch from the Battery to Washington Heights. On the same day Messrs, Muller, Wilkins & Co. dispose of twenty-eight lots on the south side of Eighty-fourth street, between Riverside Park and Eleventh avenue. This property is also finely located, and the tide of uptown improvement is rapidly approaching it. In Subarban Sales the market is exceedingly active, thanks to the detay in quick transit. Two large sales are proposed for next Monday—oneat Richmond Hill, Long Island, and one at Roselle, N. J. In the former Mr. Jere. Johnson will auction, on the grounds, 500 lots, belonging to the Curtis estate, located on streets and avenues already opened and improved. Richmond Hill is a subarb of Williamsburg, and those wo desire to live in the vicinity of the city have a good opportunity of making remunerative Investments. At Roselle 132 lots, 50x200, on Walnut, Ninth, Tenth and Eleventh avenues, will be sold on the ground, under the hammer of Messrs. A. D. Mellick, Jr., & Bro., who have made a successful specialty of New Jersey real estate. Roselle is on the line of the Central road, and is forty-three minutes distant from New York, and from Elizabeth one and a half miles, Various lines of railway are either in progress or contemplation in the vicinity of the property offered, and the terms are very liberal. In a couple of years Elizabeth and Roselle will be under one municipal government, as they are fast approaching each other. On Monday, the 1sta, the same anctioneers will have a large sale of 600 lots in the Fifth ward of Elizabeth. This property adjoins the North Park and is intersected by completed streets and avenues. To all these sales free passes are given o

THE NEW COTTON EXCHANGE.

The new Cotton Exchange, on Hanover square, was formally opened vesterday. The formality consisted in short speeches by Stephen D. Harrison, President; B. F. Voorhies, Secretary; M. B. Field. ing, of the Board of Managers, and a number of other gentlemen connected with the association. The building is a handsome brown stone front of three stories and basement. The main room on the first floor alone is devoted to the uses of the brokers. It is a large apartment, fronting on Hanover square and extending the whole width of the building from Pearl to Stone street. It is claborately frescoed, and conveniently lighted and ventilated. The President's rostrum is at the Pearl street side, and the Secretary's desk at the Stone street side, and the Secretary's desk at the Stone street side, and the Secretary's desk at the Stone street side, at elegraph office is established in the room, and black boards for the report of sales and contracts are plentifully distributed. The first sale of cotton in the new building was made by Colonel David Watts, of 100 bales deliverable in June. The other stories of the Exchange are divided into offices and are to be rented out. The building and property originally cost $115,000, of which property holders in the neighborhood advanced $15,000, in consideration of the increased value of their property likely to accrue from its erection. three stories and basement. A Burglar Caught in a Young Lady's Bedroom.

About ten o'clock, as Miss Lobdell, a daughter of John Lobdell, of 143 West Twenty-second street, was entering her bedroom, on the second floor, she discovered a man concealed behind the door. She became frightened and began to scream, on which the unwelcome visitor ran down stairs. The young lady's shrieks being heard her father, who was on the first, floor, caused him to open the door just at the mo-ment the burglar passed it on his way to the basement. Mr. Lobdell gave pursuit and succeeded in capturing him in the hallway of the basement, He had in his possession a quantity of jewelry, valued at $50, which he had taken from the room. This he delivered over to Mr. Lobelell and promised quietly to accompany him to the station house in Twentieth street. While on their way to the latter place the prisoner started on a run towards Seventh avenue. Mr. Lobdell started in pursuit, and recavtured him at the corner of Seventh avenue, where he held him until the arrival of Officer Petilips, of the Sixteenth precinct, who conveyed him to the station house. The prisoner gave his name as Thomas McDonough, a native of England, eighteen years of age, and a stone cutter by occupation. At the time he entered the house he had a pair of rubber slippers on his feet, having hid his shoes in the new Masonic Bullding, corner of Twenty-third street and Sixth avenue, where they were found by the officer. Upon examining the house it was discovered he had gained an entrance to the rear of the house through Twenty-third street, and, foreing open one of the rear windows, made his way to the room of Miss Lobdell. A jimmy which he left was subsequently found in the bouse. Upon being conveyed before Justice Ledwith, at Jefferson Market Police Court, yesterday afternoon, he denied the charge, but was committed without bail for triat. The prisoner's hair, which was formerly white, was dyed black. This he delivered over to Mr. Lobdell and promised

THE TREATY IN CANADA.

THE REAL PROPERTY OF THE PARTY OF THE PARTY

OTTAWA, Canada, May 4, 1872. Last night, Sir John A. Macdonald, Esq., Premier of the Dominion government and one of the Joint High Commissioners, introduced a bill to give effect to certain clauses of the Treaty of Washington. He said he had originally intended merely to suspend the fishing laws which prevent Americans from fishing in our waters during the coming season. As, however, the American government had acted on aff the claims, the Canadian government had de-cided to follow the same course.

The first clause of the bill was to suspend the present fishery laws, which prohibit Americans from fishing in Canadian waters. The second clause of the bill provided that during the existence of the treaty, fish and fish oil, with the exception of such products of the inland lakes. shall be admitted from the United States free of

The third clause provided for the continuance of the bonding system during the operation of the treaty.

The fourth clause previded that the right of transhipment, contained in the thirteenth clause of the treaty, shall be insured to citizens of the United States during the existence of the treaty. The last clause provides that the act shall go into effect on the issuance by the government of an order in Conneil.

The last clause provides that the act shall go into order in Council.

This bill brought all the subjects of the treaty, which the Canadian Parliament had power to act upon, before the House. The treaty had been largely discussed in the public press, and his position with reference to it had been the subject of comment. No matter what might be the consequences, this Pauliament Had the Right to Reject clauses of the treaty affecting Canada if they pleased. If such right did not exist he would have had no right to sign the treaty as Plenipotentiary. Sir John spoke for over five hours, and his speech reviewed the whole proceedings of the Commission, strongly urging the House to assent to the bill, contending that the treaty as a whole was favorable to Canada. He stated that it was a matter of surprise that the portion of the treaty which they supposed would prove most prejudicial to the maritime provinces was the most favorably regarded by the people it affected most nearly.

All our fishreles were not open to Americans. We still reserve our in-shore fisheries, and on the Pacific coast they were as exhaustiess and, he believed, as priceless as the fisheries of Hudson Bay. Under the treaty we have ACCESS TO THE MARKETS OF THE UNITED STATES, with the products of those fisheries, while the American fishermen were excluded from Canada. Therefore we have the best of the bargain in this respect. As to yielding the privilege of the navigation of the St. Lawrence River no territorial rights were yielded. The management of the tolls and regulations still belong to Canada, the only stipulation made in the treaty being that the United States may stipulation made in the treaty being that the United States may

on as free terms as Canadisn subjects for the purpose of commerce, and commerce only. As to the St. Clair Flats Canal, it was located where it is by United States engineers in good faith believing that it was on American territory. While the Commissioners were discussing the question the point was submitted that the map did not agree with the engineer's report. By looking at the clause of the treaty relating to it it appeared that it was no matter whether the canal was partly on Canadian territory or not, as according to the treaty it was to be used for all time on equal terms by vessels of the people of the United States and of Canada.

by vessels of the people of the United States and of Canada.

IN REGARD TO FENIAN RAIDS
it was admitted that Canada was wronged on that point. England admitted it, and believed that due exertion and due vigilance had not been exercised by the American government to break up Fenian organizations, who were preparing for an invasion of our country, to slay our people and destroy our property. Therefore it was a fit thing for Canada to press their claims for damages through Engiand, and they had done so. In the correspondence and instructions to the Commons it was stated that Canada had been invited to send a statement of her claims to England, but they had not done so, and this he had seen mentioned in certain newspapers as an instance of Canadian neglect. He said it was not so. It was

AN INSTANCE OF CANADIAN CAUTION.

The Canadian government felt, in pressing for claims, that not only they, but every private person who has sufered from Fenian raids, had a right to compensation; but Canada had no desire to limit or strictly define these claims. What was wanted was an admission of principle, after which the government could file all right and reasonable claims for damages. The United States took ground that the Fenian claims were not included in the correspondence between the governments, and he could not but feel that there was a great weight in the argument of the British Commissioners. He felt justfied in pressing the ques-ments, and he could not but feel that there was a great weight in the argument of the British Commissioners. He felt justified in pressing the question, but the American Commissioners declined to ask from their government any fresh instructions or any enlargement of the treaty.

ENGLAND HAD ASSUMED THE RESPONSIBILITY of the error committed. Respecting the claims, England had refused to demand compensation from the Americans, and was wise in so doing. It would have entailed an investigation and arbitration between England and the United States of an unseemly character, that would create difficulties between the two countries. They therefore suggested an arrangement that would be an advantage ty canada, that would be of more benefit to us than any money compensation we could expect, which was

A GUARANTEE FOR THE PACIFIC BAILROAD. A GUARANTEE FOR THE PACIFIC RAILROAD. The honorable gentleman concluded by saying: "It had been stated that England sacrificed the interests of Canada. If she had done so, what sacrifices had she not made herself for the sake of peace? Had she not made herself liable for millions of dollars, and done what a great nation must have felt keenly—made an apology for what she had done? But for whose sake had she done this? Principally for the sake of Canada, which was to her for the sake of Canada, which was to her

as she herself was impregnable, while she could attack the United States on a thousand points. If we were to drive a hard bargain as a portion of the empire we would not join in the sacrifice which England made for us and for the sake of peace. We should be unworthy of the position which we hope to attain, as the right arm of England's power. This treaty rendered war with the United States almost an impossibility, as any question could be treated as the Alabama question and settled by arbitration."

Sir John's speech was received, with long and Sir John's speech was received with loud and prolonged appliause.

After a few remarks from Mr. Mackenzle, the bill was read a first time, Tuesday being set down for the second reading.

THE WOOSTER STREET FIRE.

Recommendation by the Coroner's Jury. Coroner Young yesterday held inquests in the cases of James and John McSherry (brothers), the tailors who were burned to death during the fire at tailors who were burned to death during the fire at Nos. 24 and 28 Wooster street, on Saturday evening, the 27th ult., as previously reported in the Heraldown Several persons employed in the tailoring establishment on the fifth floor of the above named premises were examined, but it was impossible to learn the origin of the fire, which occurred on the floor below, where the deceased were employed. The fire suddenly burst through the floor, and the brothers McSherry, being partially overcome by the heat and smoke, were unable to fiee down the stairway or to reach the roof through the southe. In their verdict of death from burns the jury "recommend that the proper authorities enact a law compelling the crection of fire escapes on workshops and manufactories."

It was rumored that the unfortunate brothers had money in one of our savings institutions, but if so the fact cannot be discovered. The deceased parties will be buried to-day by the "Tailors' Protective Union."

CONFLAGRATION IN JERSEY.

Another Big Burning in Plainfield-Six Buildings Destroyed-Loss $100,000. Early yesterday morning, between twelve and one o'clock, Plainfield, N. J., was the scene of another destructive fire, equal in its desolation to the one of July 4, 1869. It broke out in Backman's store, on Main street, and spread rapidly on either side, taking in Oliver Runyon's store and Samoel S. Pedinenik's clothing barsar. Voorhees' drug store, J. G. Campoch's boot and shoe store, Martin Glies' paint shop and Peter Dunn's butcher shop were all laid westle. Six stores and two meat markets were destroyed so that his walls even will have to be torn down. A Mr. Robert J. Brand was badly injured by a tumbling chuancy. He barely escaped with his life. The loss is variously estimated at from $75,000 to $190,000, and is insured about one-third. The citizens speak in high praise of the fremen, and say that but for their bravery and activity twice as much property would have been destroyed as well as many lives enclangered. The cause of the contagration is not known, but an incendiary is suspected.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.

At half-past ten o'clock yesterday morning Alrunie Walbelzahi, aged forty-three years, of No. 200 ave nue A, attempted suicide by cutting an artery in her right arm. The wound was of such a serious nature that the police surgeon who attended her ordered her removal to Bellevue Hospital in an

OBITUARY.

Rev. Frederick D. Maurice. Rev. Frederick Denison Maurice, Professor o Moral Philosophy in the University of Cambridge, England, in the year 1860, and a prolific and voluminous writer on theological and philosophical subjects, has just died near the seat of his labors in Europe. He was 67 years of age. The immediate cause of his death was an attack of pleurisy, from which a previously enfeebled state of health left him no hope of rallying. As is generally the case with those who are pre-eminently thinkers rather than actors, the course of Mr. Maurice's life was comparatively uneventful. He was the son of a Unitarian minister, and born in 1805. At an early age he entered the University of Cambridge, where he became the friend of John Sterling, an intimacy which was afterwards more closely cemented from the fact of the friends marrying two sisters. Mr. Maurice did not graduate at Cambridge, as the existing state of his theological opinions prevented his subscription, and consequently cut him off from the hope of a fellowship; but he subsequently modified those opinions, entered at Exeter Coilege, Oxford, and took his Bachelor's degree in the year 1831. He became afterwards chaplain at Lincoln's lin and Theological Professor at King's College, at which latter institution he came into collision with the council on the vexed question of eternal punishment, about which, as a matter left undefined in the Established Church, he took the more liberal view. Considerable acrimony was excited by the removal of Mr. Maurice from his professorship; but, as far as he himself was concerned, the only result was his working. In comparative obscurity, as incumbent of St. Peter's, Vere street, London, where, Sunday after Sunday, a congregation who sympathized with his views gathered to hear his eloquent and fearless enunciation of them. He also applied his energies to the education of the working classes and of ladles, the Workingmen's College, for Ladles, in Harley street, London, being the two institutions to which he devoted himself more especially. In the year 1866 the University of Cambridge braved public prejudice by electing Mr. Maurice to the Chair of Moral Philosophy, and it is creditable to popular opinion that the appointment was received with a tacit verdict of approval, though the faculty was one where his peculiar opinions might have been expected to come into prominence. He was also elected honorary M. A. of the University in the following year; and since that time he has been again a silent power in the world, until the fact of his somewhat sudden death brings his name once more more prominently forward, and makes men aware that a really great man has gone from our midst. It may well be questioned whether any one of his contemporaries did more to influence the relig

The sudden death is announced of Mr. H. Rudd, chorus master at the Norwich (England) Musical Festival, in which capacity he had gained the warm commendation of Sir Julius Benedict, the general conductor. Mr. Rudd was originally a working sawyer, but his natural musical talents gradually won for him a place in Norwick society.

SUICIDE IN NINETY-SIXTH STREET.

At nine o'clock last night John Culvert, residing at the corner of 116th street and Third avenue, shot himself while in a shanty at the corner of Ninetysixth street and Third avenue. The unfortunate man, while being conveyed to the Ninetcenth precinct station house, died. The Coroner has been notified and will hold an inquest to-day. The police of the above precinct falled to state his age, occupation or what prompted him to take his own life.

MORE TROUBLE IN THE CAISSON.
